Flying Goes Ahead
A Duty to Presidents
Italy's New Submarines
Sucker Whisky

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

AVIATION continues its progress. St. Louis yesterday celebrated [illegible] anniversary of Lindbergh's [illegible] flight.

Mrs. Johnson, 22-year-old English girl, flying alone from England to Australia, crossed the Sea of Java, crashed, for lack of fuel, then started again.

The Graf Zeppelin is above the Atlantic, under way from Spain to Brazil, flying through a part of the air ocean that had never seen a dirigible.

President Hoover yesterday reviewed warships and fighting airplanes in an interesting "mimic battle" off the Virginia Capes, the navy Los Angeles sailing overhead.

It was a pleasant spectacle and president Hoover, commander in chief of the army and navy, doubtless found time to remember that one-half the air force of France could destroy everything that he saw on the water and in the air, and do it in less than half an hour.

* * *

FORMER PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE, Republican, but a real democrat, recently sat on the porch before his half of the little two-family house close to the road, undisturbed by automobiles, well loaded, stopping and gazing, one every six seconds.

Mr. Coolidge said that it is the people's duty "to back the president." National success depends on this support.

On the other hand, it is the public's duty to be frank with the president and let him know public opinion.

It is unjust to a president not to let him know the thoughts of the 115,000,000 Americans that he will never see.

* * *

MUSSOLINI believes in emphatic words and energetic deeds to back them. Last week he told a crowd of 100,000 in Florence that Italy was prepared for everybody, France included. Now he is adding 22 submarines to the Italian navy.

With those 22 submarines Mussolini could do a great deal to the peace of mind of France. Great Britain and other ship-owning nations.

Peace is beautiful, but Mussolini seems to be ready for the other thing.

Mr. Doran, prohibition commissioner, finds the prohibition problem based on the fact that "people are willing to pay $10 for 15 cents' worth of sucker whisky."

"Sucker whisky," says Mr. Doran, "is put in special bottles, corked with sawed corks burned with the right mark, labeled with salt water-stained labels, packed in salt water-stained burlaps and sold to country clubs as 'just off the boat.'"

GREAT BRITAIN has stopped immigration into Palestine and the Jewish National Council proclaims a general strike throughout the Holy Land in protest. Jews in Palestine say the British order means the doom of Zionism."

The idea of Great Britain is to give the present inhabitants of Palestine, Jews and Arabs, a chance to become acquainted and friendly. This is offensive to the Zionists.

Dr. Goldsmith, of the Radio Corporation of America, thinks we need a world language "to link the peoples by radio." A world language will come through "survival of the fittest"; maybe the English language as that language dominates in movies, talkies and radio.

Other nations need not be offended by the suggestion. English is a fair compromise, being made up of French, German, Saxon, Italian, Greek, Sanskrit, Arabic and other languages.

DIFFERENT countries, different customs, as the French say. In Santo Domingo, Gen. Trujillo having won the presidential election, the American receiver of Dominican customs, Mr. Pulliam, returning home, finds defeated candidates sitting on his doorstep asking protection from the successful candidate.

Imagine Governor Al Smith after the election hurrying to the doorstep of the British ambassador for protection from President-elect Hoover.

The American Book Sellers' association is told that price-cutting in the sale of books will ruin the book trade. On the other hand, intelligent reduction in prices of books would establish the book trade. Selling 10 or 50 thousand books means nothing.

Books should be read by the millions. And the book business, like other great businesses, should build itself up on big sales and small profits, instead of selling for $2.50 a book that can be made for 40 cents.

FIRE CHIEF HURT

Caught Under Falling Lumber As Building Burns at Urbana.

URBANA, O., May 21—One fireman was hurt and loss of between $10,000 and $15,000 resulted today when fire of unknown origin swept one of the three buildings of the Triple Lumber Co. here.

Fire Chief George Donovan suffered bruises about the legs when a pile of lumber fell on him. He was removed from the scene in an ambulance, and, after receiving medical treatment, was taken to his home.

The lumber company manufactures baseball bats, pick and hammer handles and other wooden utilities.

VOTE FOR DAVIS GROWS; BROWN LOSING GROUND

Running Mate of Secretary of Labor Hard Pressed in Primary Contest.

PINCHOT MOVING AHEAD

Davis Count More Than All His Opponents for Senate Nomination.

BULLETIN.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, May 21—Returns from 7,255 districts out of 8,701 in the state show that the plurality for Francis Shunk Brown for governor in yesterday's primary over Gifford Pinchot now stands at 24,337. The total vote for the districts received was Brown 558,281; Pinchot 533,944; Thomas W. Phillips, wet candidate, 328,387.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis received more votes than all his opponents combined for the Republican nomination for United States senate in unofficial returns from 6,740 of the 8,701 districts in Tuesday's primary.

JAMES J. DAVIS

The lead of the former Pittsburgh iron puddler rose above the huge majority given him in Philadelphia and with 1,961 districts to be tabulated amounted to 215,911.

While the lead of Secretary Davis was increasing, that of his running mate for governor, Francis Shunk Brown, was steadily decreasing. With 1,808 districts missing Brown led Gifford Pinchot by 43,229.

Most of the missing districts were in upstate rural territory where Pinchot's strength is most pronounced. Additional returns steadily cut into Brown's lead.

The vote for senator from 6,740 districts was: Davis 609,241; Grundy 366,830 and Francis H. Boblen, wet candidate, 202,336.

The vote for governor in 6,805 districts was: Brown, 536,806, Pinchot 493,577, and Thomas W. Phillips, wet, 229,705.

There were no contests for statewide offices in the Democratic party. Sedwick Kistler, of Lockhaven, becoming the minority party nominee for senator and John Hemphill, of Westchester, for governor.

The strong organization wards of Philadelphia provided a plurality of 153,533 for Davis and 107,569 for

"Triumph for Decency," Davis Terms Victory

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 21—Returning to Washington today, Secretary Davis hailed the result of the senatorial primary in Pennsylvania as "a triumph for decency in politics."

Asked when he would resign as secretary of labor, to assume actively his role as Republican senatorial nominee, he replied:

"I shall write my annual report."

The annual reports of cabinet officers are written after the fiscal year ends of June 30.

SENATE VOTE GIVES ROBERTS APPROVAL

Speedy Action Authorizes Philadelphia Man To Take Court Post.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 21—Owen J. Roberts, of Philadelphia, was authorized today to take office as an associate justice of the supreme court.

His nomination to that post was approved unanimously by the senate late yesterday, in sharp contrast with the bitter disputes that preceded the confirmation of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and the rejection of the nomination of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina.

Roberts will succeed the late Associate Justice Edwin Terry Sanford, to whose post Parker was nominated. The new member of the highest court is recognized as an outstanding lawyer and gained national distinction through his services as a special government prosecutor in the oil lease cases. He has never before served on the bench.

He is a Republican but is not identified with any of the factions of that party in Pennsylvania. He is 55 years old.

The nomination was confirmed almost as soon as it was brought up for action. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, inquired whether it had been unanimously approved by the judiciary committee and when told that such was the case he said he had no objection. Vice President Curtis immediately declared the nomination approved.

FINAL STAGE NEAR

20 SET MARK FOR MASS AERIAL DROP

Here are the 20 parachute jumpers, composed of three army men and 17 civilians, beside their giant Curtis Condor plane, in which they broke the world's record for the largest number of jumpers to leap from a plane within the shortest space of time. All the men left the ship practically at the same instant. The daring and record-breaking stunt, held at Roosevelt Field, L. I., was the feature of the National Moose field day celebration.

PETITIONS OUT TO STOP DEAL

Citizens' Committee To War Against Purchase of Water Co. Is Being Formed.

GROUP TO BE PERMANENT

Dr. F. C. Smith, Leader of Fight, Says Several Hundred Sign Objections.

Announcement that a citizens committee would be permanently organized within the next 10 days to "oppose the entire project" of the proposed purchase of the Marion Water Co. by the city was made this morning by Dr. Frederick C. Smith, who has strongly opposed the proposition since its inception a month ago.

Dr. Smith reported a number of petitions are being circulated in the city to determine public sentiment on the proposal. The petitions express opposition to the plan as it is now being worked out by city officials, and bear the names of 90 per cent of the persons to whom they have been submitted, according to Dr. Smith. These petitions, which now bear several hundred names, were displayed at the office of Dr. Smith this morning.

The citizens committee will have unlimited numbers to support it, Dr. Smith declared. He says representatives of every class have offered their support to oppose the purchase.

Officers of this committee as well as legal counsel to advise its actions through the fight that is anticipated if council proceeds with negotiations looking toward the purchase of the company, will be named at the meeting soon, Dr. Smith reports.

Speaking for the persons who are opposed to the proposed purchase, Dr. Smith reiterated it is not a question of private or municipal ownership at stake, but a suspicion that the Marion Water Co. is attempting to "unload," although city officials say the water company has not been approached on the subject.

Asked for a possible reason why the water company might wish to sell its local property, Dr. Smith declared he believed the business of the company was not flourishing.

"There's no doubt in my mind that we're going to defeat the whole proposition," Dr. Smith concluded. "Council has not taken the people into its confidence, and should not dare to act on plans to purchase the company until it has done so," he said.

POLICE BAFFLED AS TO CAUSE OF DEATH

Undecided Whether Wealthy Chicagoan Was Murdered or Committed Suicide.

By The Associated Press

KENTLAND, Ind., May 21—Authorities were undecided today whether murder or suicide was the answer to the death of William Simons, prominent Chicago grain broker and one-time partner of former Gov. Warren T. McCray.

The body of Simons, 50 years old, was found beside a highway near here yesterday. Two bullets had been fired through the back of the head and a third had entered the body just below the heart.

The coroner, who called an inquest for today, believed Simons killed himself. Members of Simons' family, however, believed he was murdered.

Simons was connected with McCray, Morrison & Co., grain dealers in Kentland until 1910 when he went to Chicago and later became president of the Sawers Grain Co., which failed in 1923.

Simons was regarded as one of the wealthiest men in this district.

RASKOB NAMED AS ANTI-DRY LEADER

Lobby Committee Report Pictures Him as Chief of Lobby Against Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, May 21—Senator Robinson, Indiana Republican, today asserted that Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic national committee, had had an "important part" in all the activities of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and that "few if any of the methods of lobbying were neglected by that organization.

"Partial report" on the lobby committee's investigation of the wet organization and Raskob's connection with it was introduced by the Indianan, who is the only regular Republican on the committee.

"Throughout the activities of the association, the name of John J. Raskob appears and reappears, and apparently few important activities were engaged in without reference to him," Robinson said, "Indeed, it developed that a letter was sent out over his signature to prominent Democrats throughout the country, asking them for contributions to this organization."

Again, the senator said Raskob's contributions to the association "were among the largest and the association has generally had his active aid and assistance in all of its plans and undertakings."

The greater part of Robinson's report consisted of a recital of the evidence received by the committee in connection with the association and Raskob. He also brought in the testimony of Josephus Daniels, the former secretary of the navy, and quoted at length from an editorial which appeared in Daniels' newspaper at Raleigh, N. C., demanding that Raskob resign the national party chairmanship because of his wet views and his connection with the association.

Quotes from Testimony

The Indianan told also of Raskob's testimony that he had "contributed a total of $77,000 to the association since 1927 and of his assertion that he was glad to devote this money to carrying out the purpose of the organization."

This, Robinson said, was significant in connection with Raskob's statement that the aim of the association was the presentation of "facts and data to the American people that will tell them the truth about the conditions existing, and to do everything in its power to elect representatives who will favor the modification or repeal of the amendment."

Report on Huston's Activities Submitted

The senate lobby committee's report on the solicitation of funds by Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, from the Union Carbide Co. in behalf of Muscle Shoals legislation and the use of these funds in stock market transactions was submitted today to the senate by Chairman Caraway.

The report made no comment whatever on the incident and was confined to a narration of the facts brought out in the committee's examination of Huston as president of the Tennessee river improvement association. The committee emphasized that Mr. Huston turned over all of the funds to the association.

The report was entitled "lobbying and lobbyists" and it related the committee's entire investigation into lobbying activities in behalf of Muscle Shoals legislation. The committee reported that Huston as president of the Tennessee River Improvement association was "active in advocating the acceptance by congress of the offer of the American Cyanide Co. for the development and utilization of Muscle Shoals."

Teacher Quits After 45 Years in Schoolroom

W. O. SELANDERS, 223 Pearl st., is bringing to a close in June, 45 years as a teacher and principal in Marion city and county schools. At present he is an instructor at Central Junior High school, in which capacity he has served for three years. Prior to that time he held the position of principal at the school for seven years, until the duties became too heavy.

LAST night after school the faculty of the school and his homeroom pupils held an informal reception for him in his homeroom. When he entered the room, his desk was piled high with gifts from his group of students and from the faculty. The faculty members presented him with an automobile robe and a gallon thermos jug.

Mr. Selanders is one of the best-known figures in the educational life of the city.

Blames Liquor Traffic for Chicago Crime Wave

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 21—Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, believes the liquor traffic largely responsible for Chicago crime.

Addressing the national safety council last night, Colonel Randolph, who heads the "secret six committee" organized to fight crime, said, "Whatever may be thought of the Volstead act, responsibility for crime here can be traced to illicit liquor traffic.

"Beer costs $2 a barrel to produce," he said, "and sells for $60. Alcohol costs 40 cents a gallon to cook and they get $12 for it. Enormous profits there. And the paying of enormous graft to somebody goes with it. Illicit liquor couldn't be distributed otherwise. We can't cope with crime as long as this source of bootlegging profits exists."

The speaker urged that crime news be printed on the front pages of the newspapers, saying "You can't clean a room by sweeping the dirt under the bed."

Holdup Trio Caught in Jewelry Robbery

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Md., May 21—Detectives with sawed-off shotgun trooped into a jewelry store on Charles st. in the midst of a hold-up today and captured all three hold-up men without firing a shot.

George Ruoff, the proprietor and a woman patron were lying on the floor, bound and gagged. Ruoff's shop is on the second floor.

A mail carrier, making his morning round, heard cries, tip-toed to the door of the shop, and then fled with the alarm that brought the police.

Ruoff had been beaten over the head with a blackjack, but was not seriously hurt, police said.

200 Gold Star Mothers Kneel in Prayer As They Visit Sons' Graves First Time

By The Associated Press

ROMAGNE - SOUS - MONTFAUCON, France, May 21—Nearly two-thirds of the American gold star mothers looked for the first time today on their soldiers sons' graves in the principal American military cemetery here. There are buried in this cemetery half of America's war dead in this country.

The mothers came in motor cars from historic Verdun, where they spent the night resting from their long drive from Paris.

The sky itself was tinged with sadness and rain cut short the pilgrimage after an hour. Many of the mothers had brought evergreen wreaths, some entwined with flowers and others found wreaths ready for them here. Some brought little American flags which they placed on the graves.

The mothers, almost 200 of them, went in little groups to different parts of the cemetery and there prayed at the graves of their boys. There was some sobbing and all were wet-eyed as they lived over again the day their sons departed, the long months of anguished waiting, and the saddest day of all when came word of death.

When after an hour a squall of Eckener Uses Only Four of Five Motors To Maintain Speed.

Copyright by International News Service

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, AT SEA, May 21—With four of its five motors roaring out a symphony of renewed triumph over space, the Graf Zeppelin soared through the blue of a cloudless sky today, making fast time on its commercial venture across the South Atlantic to the new world.

Reeling off 70 miles each hour with no sign of storms or no unruly wind to spoil the Graf's smooth motion, the giant dirigible had covered more than 1,300 miles of open water since leaving Cadiz at the time this dispatch was filed.

Headed Southwest

At 8 a. m. (4 a. m. Eastern Daylight Savings time), the position of the Graf was 24 degrees north, 19.30 degrees west. The huge ship was heading southwest, making in the direction of the Cape Verde Islands, about 600 miles distant.

Commander Dr. Hugo Eckener allowed one motor to load unused, finding four sufficient to maintain a speed of approximately 72 statute miles an hour, with considerably less consumption of gasoline than if all five were roaring away.

From the windows of the cabin gondola, the passengers saw beneath them a seemingly limitless expanse of sea, mirror-smooth, and from the Graf's altitude as though not even a ripple disturbed its glassy surface.

The sun shone brightly, lighting the heavens with all the beauty of tropical spring-time, while beneath the ship raced along atop the waves its own huge shadow.

Nobody Seasick

All the passengers arose early, none of them seemingly the worse for their first night at sea. Even those prone to sea-sickness found nothing in the gentle motion of the dirigible to upset them.

Considerate always, Dr. Eckener chose a course which would spare the Graf the rocking effect of disorderly winds, and found a cloudless lane of travel to enable the passengers to be awakened from their sleep by a flood of golden sunlight in their staterooms.

Travels Near Parallel with African Coast

By The Associated Press

The Graf passed the Canary islands today and nosed steadily southwest in a line almost parallel with the African coast toward the Cape Verde islands. Her course was shaped for the equator, with little chance, however, of attaining the goal today.

Dispatches from all sources indicated that all was well on the Graf and that she is following her charted course as nearly as possible. She was averaging high speed toward her destination at Pernambuco, Brazil.

Warden Thomas Orders John Hall, Night Captain, Reduced to Guard.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 12—John Hall, night captain at Ohio penitentiary was demoted to guard today by Warden P. E. Thomas as an aftermath of the Easter Monday prison fire in which 320 convicts perished.

Hall's demotion was effective May 12, the warden said. Since the fire Hall has been confined to his home with a nervous disorder.

Harry E. Laukhart, former member of the Dayton police department, was promoted to night captain and Guard Harold Whetstone, of Columbus, was appointed assistant night captain filling the vacancy caused by Laukhart's promotion.

Testimony at the state investigation of the prison fire was that Hall had been slow in ordering night guards to unlock the cells in which the prisoners were trapped.

2,500 TO BE AT HUBER PARTY

Marion Machinery Concern Will Hold Annual Picnic for Threshermen.

More than 2,500 threshermen and their families from all parts of Ohio will be in Marion Thursday as guests of the Huber Manufacturing Company's annual threshermen's dinner, it was announced today by A. W. Newby, president. The meeting will be held at the Huber plant on North Greenwood st.

Farmers from southern Michigan, western Pennsylvania and eastern Indiana are expected to be among those in attendance.

A display of the new Huber models will be one of the features of the program, which will start at 11 o'clock and which will continue the remainder of the day.

Local concerns have donated prizes which will be awarded winners in various contests to be conducted during the day.

Singing and dancing by a group of Bucyrus entertainers is another feature of the program.

QUESTION CURTIS IN PROBE OF CONTRACTS

Son of Vice President Linked with Complaints of Alleged Irregularities.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 21—The Daily News said today that Harry K. Curtis, son of Vice President Charles Curtis, was to be questioned at the state's attorney's office concerning complaints of Chicago contractors that they paid fees to Curtis in connection with public building contracts.

Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, said he was endeavoring to reach Curtis and admitted that the questioning would relate to government contracts.

Prosecutors have been investigating the complaints of Chicago contractors that they had paid a "substantial sum" as retainers to Curtis and several associates, the News said. The newspaper quoted Roche, however, as expressing belief government contracts could not be delivered by the vice president's son, and that his inquiry was only to determine whether state laws had been violated.

Sub contracts on the proposed $14,000,000 post office here and general contracts for federal buildings in Milwaukee, Racine, Aurora, Minneapolis, Fort Wayne and other midwestern cities had been promised by Curtis, according to statements the News said were made to Roche and Richard V. Jackson, assistant state's attorney.

Newspaper stories were published in Milwaukee several weeks ago alleging that unnamed persons had approached Milwaukee contractors with a proposition to deliver government work, but the district attorney there was quoted as saying no money had been paid.

REVEALS THREAT TO LIMIT U. S. CRUISERS

Reed Charges Two British Dominions Tried To Limit Eight-Inch Ships.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 21—How two British dominions talked at the cruiser-building program of the United States during the London naval conference was disclosed today by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, one of the American delegates.

Cross examining Rear Admiral J. R. P. Pringle, before the senate foreign relations committee, Reed asked:

"Did you know that Australia and New Zealand threatened not only to sign a treaty giving us 21 eight inch cruisers, but to build some eight inch cruisers of their own?"

The senator explained the two dominions feared the projected American building program would prompt Japan also to build, upsetting the balance in the far east.

Pringle opposed the cruiser reduction, as did Rear Admiral J. V. Chase, who appeared today before the naval committee.

Finally, however, Pringle conceded under Reed's insistent questioning that "it was a very successful piece of negotiating on the part of the American delegation."

CITY COUNCILMAN CONTINUES DRIVE

Toledoan Invited by Mayor To Stage Vice Cleanup Gets Busy at Once.

TOLEDO, May 21—Taking Mayor William T. Jackson at his word, Alford J. Lee, Toledo's energetic crusading councilman, today continued his relentless war against lawbreakers following a day of successful encounters in which he raided three places and seized six slot machines.

The councilman began his vigorous campaign yesterday upon authority of Mayor Jackson, who told Lee to "go out and make your own arrests" rather than stir up an investigation.

Within three hours Lee had seized three slot machines and ordered patrolmen to haul them to the safety building to be destroyed. Later in the day the councilman seized three more machines and sent them to a like destiny.

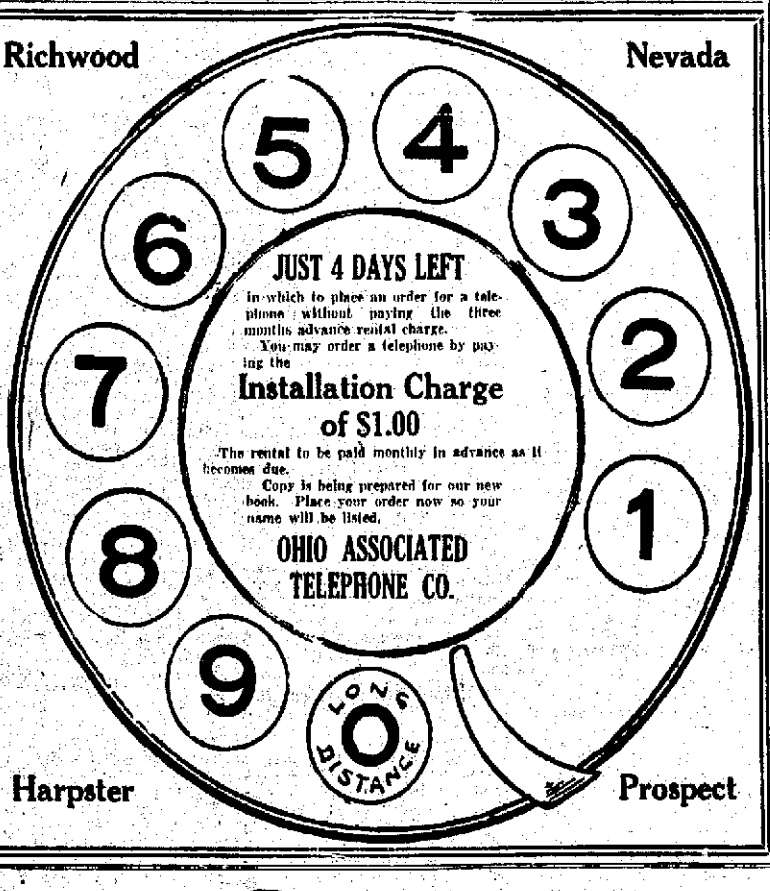
DON'T BE A SLAVE TO LAXATIVES

Mrs. E. Gebhard, 301 W. 5th St., Newport, Ky., says, "My husband and I were actually slaves to laxatives, continually dosing ourselves with something to relieve constipation. Just couldn't stop. It got to be a habit. We even gave our children laxatives in candy form. Little did we realize that we were only aggravating and not reaching the cause of the constipation. Headaches, biliousness, indigestion and constipation still continued.

Our druggist recommended Carter's Little Liver Pills. He said these little vegetable pills would tone up the liver, stir up the bile, which, acting as an antiseptic, keeps the food from rotting, and poisoning the blood. They are not habit forming and thoroughly cleanse the upper and lower bowel. Laxatives fail to do this." Carter's Little Liver Pills are sold at all Druggists in 25c red paper pkgs.



KELVINATOR'S 4-way cold means—

Two Degrees of Cold for Foods—One for milk, meats, fruits, vegetables and other perishables; another for frozen meats and fish, game, frozen fruits. . . . More Ice—100% Faster Freezing of Ice and Frozen Desserts, such as sherbets, mousses and parfaits. . . . Less Work—Being entirely automatic, there is nothing to control by hand, and therefore no tax on the memory. . . . No Food Spoilage—The 4 different cold temperatures do their work in 4 different compartments, entirely separate from each other. Thus the main food compartment is always between 40 and 50 degrees—and never at food freezing temperature.

KELVINATOR'S AUTOMATIC 4-WAY COLD GIVES YOU

1 More Ice Automatically—De luxe models provide more ice, size for size, than any other refrigerator. From 20 to 34 pounds at a freezing.

2 Automatic Super-Fast Freezing—In a second compartment, a very low cold for extra-quick ice. Ice-Thermic Tubes—exclusive Kelvinator feature—give extraordinary freezing speed.

3 Automatic Cold Storage—In de luxe models a third compartment, with below-freezing cold for cold storage of meats, game, fish, ice cream, etc.

4 Scientific Refrigeration—In food compartments, a 40 to 50-degree constant cold—automatically maintained—just the right temperature, science says, to keep foods fresh.

3 New Features . . .

The Kelvin Cooler—An accessory for freshening vegetables and keeping them fresh. Also used as a water cooler. All-porcelain, with faucet. Fits the wide Kelvinator food shelves. New Rubber Ice Trays—Made of flexible pure rubber. Bend easily in the hands, releasing one or a dozen ice cubes. These trays increase the usable yield of ice from 33 to 50 per cent because they prevent waste by melting under faucet. Inside Electric Light—On de luxe models, an electric light illuminates the cabinet. Switch and light indicator on front of box. A convenience that will be appreciated by every housewife.

Everyone can now own a Kelvinator—on Easy Terms—

The model Kelvinator you require may be purchased on easy terms through Kelvinator's attractive ReDiCo monthly budget plan. $134

"The Divorcee" Highly Entertaining

THERE is just enough clever comedy in 'The Divorcee," now playing at the Palace to relieve the cash customer's nerve tension in trying to help lovely Norma Shearer and Chester Morris patch up their difference and live happy ever after

The first unpleasant ripple on the matrimonial sea of Norma and Chester shows up on their third wedding anniversary when the "gang" drops in for a bit of merrymaking In the party is a designing widow and former playpartner of friend husband Sauce for the gander is likewise the goose's privilege if she cares to take it, is Norma's deduction, and she does Divorce is the next step and Norma's career begins The final chapter is written in Paris when Norma and Chester meet on New Year's Eve

There are some splendid scenes in the picture and the photography is excellent. Adults will like the picture

A good news reel and a rollicking comedy with Hal Roach and his plump companion as a couple of play boys making whoopee on some supposedly prohibited refreshments belonging to the former's wife completes the program

SCHINDORFF STILL HELD BY OFFICERS

Police Investigate Story of Brother-in-Law of Man Killed Here.

Clarence Schindorff, 31, of 860 Silver st., was still booked on an investigation charge and held in city prison today as police continued their investigation of the jewelry store burglaries here early Sunday morning, featured by the fatal shooting of William B. Harris, 20, of Fostoria, by Patrolman A. W. McColly.

The name of Schindorff, a brother-in-law of Harris, was linked with Harris when police found Schindorff's Ford coach, apparently spotted to aid Harris in a getaway, that was cut short when the patrolman's shot killed him.

Burglary of the M. N. Landes jewelry store at 405 West Center st. sometime Sunday morning remained a mystery today, as did the whereabouts of the loot.

Marion Mimes Terminate Season of Productions

Presentation of Two One-Act Plays and Installation of New Officers Conclude Active Year for Little Theater Organization Here.

The active season of plays of the Marion Mimes came to a close last night at Central Junior High school auditorium with the presentation of two one-act plays and a business meeting in which the officers for 1930-31 assumed their duties.

Rodney B. Hume, incoming president to succeed Walter W. Weber, spoke to the members present, giving them an outline of the work that is planned for next year. Last night officially closed the year, but the Mimes will probably give their second annual garden party in July or August. Issuance of a questionnaire to determine types of plays which members favor is among the plans to be carried out soon.

With Mr. Hume as president, are the following officers: Paul Knappenberger, first vice president in charge of production; Mrs. George Klein maier, second vice president in charge of play reading and casting; Hallie Houck, third vice president in charge of programs; A. J. Haecker, fourth vice president in charge of business; Mrs. J. W. McMurray, secretary; Wilson B. Tway, treasurer.

An historical sketch of French Revolution drama, directed by Mrs. George G. Lippincott, was presented by Miss Iona Richards, Robert H. Allen and Henry Miller.

A comedy skit of three love affairs, and the desire of a young boy to assert his rights in a family, was presented by Mrs. Fred W. Berg, Mrs. Russell Wilhelm, Miss Betty Raub, W. C. Boyd, Douglas Felt, William Rapp and Landy Shoots. Mrs. Paul Knappenberger directed the play.

Announcement of further activities of the Mimes during the summer season will be made to the members.

WAR MOTHERS PRAY AT GRAVES OF SONS

200 of American Gold Star Group Visit Cemetery for First Time.

rain came, the mothers were hurried by the accompanying officers to the hostess house, where they comforted one another and had lunch.

All of the mothers arrived at Verdun last night, well, but many were tired. Mayor Schleiter and other officials as well as the French war widows of the region greeted them.

Scars of War Covered Up

Among the places which the mothers visited were such well known spots in America's war history as Soissons, Chateau Thierry, Saint Quentin and Bar De Luc. There were but few signs of the war left, as nature has covered over the scars of the battle-fields with blue bells, golden broom and lilies of the valley.

The arrangements for care of the mothers were so carefully made and such good care was taken of the pilgrims that none of the mothers today had reported anything but mild indispositions and fatigue inseparable from the long journey they had made.

CORN PLANTING HERE IS NEAR COMPLETION

Acreage of Soy Beans Increase; Weather Ideal for Crops.

Planting of the corn crop in Marion county practically has been completed, according to officials of the Marion County Farm Bureau.

Farmers took advantage of the favorable weather last week to get their grain planted, and the heavy rain over the week-end is expected to start early germination of the seed, it is said.

Corn growers who have not completed their planting will find their soil in excellent condition this week as the result of recent rains, in the opinion of bureau officials.

Soy beans are being planted by numerous Marion county farmers this year and a greater than usual crop is expected.

TO PROTEST ACTION OF M. E. COMMITTEE

Dissenting Members of Church Board Charge Cannon Exoneration Illegal.

By The Associated Press

DALLAS, Tex., May 21—As the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, neared its close today, an attempt was begun to protest formally the exoneration of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of charges of stock market speculation.

Apparently more concerned in the election of a third bishop and perfection of plans for the consolidation of several education boards, most delegates apparently considered the Cannon allegations a closed issue.

Judge G. T. Fitzhugh, of Memphis, prime mover in the convention fight against the militant Washington, D. C., bishop, declared, however, that he would protest exoneration on the ground that such action of the episcopacy committee was illegal. The exoneration could not be given after the committee previously voted to bring the churchman to trial, Mr. Fitzhugh contended.

Fitzhugh said he had new evidence to support his latest attack. This evidence, it was learned, consisted of several telegrams exchanged between the bishop and Kuhle & Co., defunct New York brokerage house.

If the head of the house makes lots of money, his wife may overlook his faults.

FINDING OF $21,550 RETURNED BY STATE

Amount Said To Have Been Obtained in Highway Payroll Padding.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, May 21—Findings of $21,550.23 were reported against Robert W. Fry, Lima, former assistant engineer of the Lima division of the state highway department, in a report on a special investigation made to State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy today.

Fry is serving a five year term in Ohio penitentiary on charges of payroll padding, resulting from the examination. He pleaded guilty.

The report which was filed by W. Hensey Howland and John F. Eckhart, state examiners, stated that Fry had obtained the money by adding names to the maintenance and repair payroll in 1924 and 1923 and to the division garage payroll in 1929.

The examiners said that Fry had obtained money on certain complete fictitious payrolls in Allen county in 1925 and in Hardin county in 1926, 1927 and 1928.

A finding of $336.12 was reported against C. R. Hanes, Lima, another assistant division engineer, for the duplication of time on the maintenance and repair payroll in Wyandot county.

L. C. Cloud, Lima, superintendent of route markings in the division, was directed to repay $102 which the examiners charged was obtained from an illegal payment of wages.

A finding of $418 against C. V. Decker, Lima, superintendent in the division of bridge construction and repairs, was repaid, the examiners said. The finding was made on alleged padded payrolls.

Youth Again Confesses Murder of Housewife

CHICAGO, May 21—After first confessing to the ribbon murder of Mrs. Mildred Helsing, young housewife, and then repudiating his statement, William Putscher, 19, today made a new confession in which he admitted strangling Mrs. Helsing to death in her apartment.

Putscher in his latest statement admitted taking the young bride's diamond rings after he strangled her with a piece of silk ribbon. The jewelry, he said, was given to two girls. Detectives located the girls, who admitted receiving jewelry gifts from young Putscher, but the slain woman's husband failed to identify the rings as those his wife had worn.

To Try Night Baseball in Pacific Coast Loop

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21—Night baseball, which many magnates believe will save the American pastime from financial decay since its successful trial by Des Moines this spring, will make its debut in the Pacific Coast league at Sacramento, June 10.

Lew Moreing, president of the league-leading Sacramento club, announced here last night that the plan would be tried in the capital.

Oakland's Acorns will vie with Sacramento in the first coast venture into the floodlights, and other teams will have their opportunities later.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 21—The most sizeable set of twins thus far reporting in the 1930 census are Waukegan, Ill., and Mansfield, O., each with a population of 33,434.

Waukegan reached that figure by a 73.5 per cent increase, which put the city, for the first time into the census bureau list of towns over 25,000. Mansfield, 270th city on that list last census, increased by just 20 per cent.

NEW LEADER ARRIVES TO DIRECT INDIANS

V. J. Patel To Take Over Leadership in Civil Disobedience Campaign.

By The Associated Press

DHARASANA, Bombay, May 21—V. J. Patel, former president of the Indian legislative assembly who resigned his post to range himself with Mahatma Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign, arrived here this afternoon to lead the Nationalist sali raiders in view of the arrest of Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, their leader hitherto.

Mrs. Naidu, Hindu poetess who succeeded Mahatma Gandhi and Abbas Tyabji as leader of the civil disobedience campaign, was arrested by British police this morning as she directed a raid on the government salt depot at Dharasana.

One hundred nationalist volunteers, or Satyagrahis as they are called, were injured in a clash with police during the raid. Others arrested were Manilal Gandhi, son of the Mahatma, the Mahatma's secretary, Pyarelal, and the Iman Saheb of Bragis, a Moslem fellow worker of Gandhi's. At almost the same time 300 unarmed police and 50 armed police under high officers raided the headquarters here of the all India national congress. All office workers including the president of the local council, Narimat, were arrested.

Mrs. Naidu, who is of middle age, is the third of civil disobedience heads to be taken into custody. She was designated by Mahatma Gandhi early in the campaign to follow with Abbas Tyabji to leadership of the campaign when he should be arrested, and did so upon Tyabji's arrest, May 12.

PARENTS OF MISSING CHILD ARE QUIZZED

Chicago Police Suspect Mary Moroney May Have Been Killed.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 21—Failure of police to find any trace of Mary Moroney or her reported kidnaper, a "Mrs. Julia Otis," resulted last night in the questioning of the child's parents, Michael and Kathryn Moroney.

Disappearance of the two-year-old girl was reported last Thursday. The mother said a woman, claiming to be a social worker, asked to take the child and buy a dress for her. The next day the mother said she received a letter telling her that Mrs. Otis was taking the child to California for two months.

Later another letter from a supposed aunt was received, Mrs. Moroney said, telling that Mrs. Otis had lost her own child and was "love hungry."

Police said there were several unusual circumstances connected with the story told by the parents. They also believed both the letter from Mrs. Otis and that supposed to have been sent by her aunt were in the same handwriting. Authorities expressed the fear the child might have been killed, accidentally or otherwise.

William Conroad, a friend of the Moroneys, also was questioned.

DAVIS VOTE GROWS; BROWN SLUMPING

Running Mate of Secretary of Labor Hard Pressed in Primary Contest.

Brown, which was partly dissipated by the large vote upstate for Grundy and Pinchot, running independently but united in their opposition to the Philadelphia organization.

Grundy sought a mandate from the electorate to return to the senate, to which he was appointed by Governor John S. Fisher when the senate rejected William S. Vare. Grundy sought the place that he might continue his battle for a high tariff and further protection for Pennsylvania industry.

Davis, chosen as the Vare candidate when physicians prevailed upon Vare himself not to seek vindication of his claim to a seat in the senate, also promised to work for a protective tariff and asked for the labor vote on his record as secretary of labor during the last 10 years.

Pinchot Runs as Dry

Pinchot, in addition to pleas to keep the Philadelphia organization out of the state administration, campaigned as an ardent dry and as a foe of the state public service commission.

Brown urged a referendum on state prohibition enforcement as his answer to the question in this state and pointed to his record on humanitarian legislation and to his record as attorney general of the state.

The wet candidates urged repeal of the state's prohibition enforcement legislation.

The Brown-Davis ticket travelled throughout the state, as did Pinchot. Grundy contented himself with a few trips to key points and to radio addresses.

All but two of the state's 36 Republican congressmen were candidates for nomination and most of them successfully fended off opposition to their return to Washington. Among the more prominent members of the delegation who won what amounted to reelection were Louis T. McFadden, chairman of the house committee on banking; George F. Brumm of Pottsville, and James M. Beck of Philadelphia.

Green was nominated last night by the state convention after a heated fight which deposed a woman candidate who placed first in the primaries —Miss Gladys Pyle, secretary of state—and three others.

The final vote gave: Green 64,223; Pyle 47,083; Carl Trynstad, Brookings, 4,340; Howell 3,45?, and Carl Gunderson, Mitchell, none.

Daily Proverb—"When the husband drinks to the wife all would be well; when the wife drinks to the husband, all is well."

The snow white dove of peace may now alight over in Europe with some degree of security. The French began the final evacuation of the Rhineland Tuesday.

The construction contracts let in the country during the month of April reached the enormous total of $483,000,000. A month or two more like that should lay unemployment out cold.

Dearborn, Michigan, has a population of 50,060, about twenty-five times that given it in the 1920 book of census. It is hinted that there has been some industrial development in the city in comparatively recent years.

"The Pride of San Joaquin," which won the frog-jumping honors at Angels' Camp, California, in 1928, but lost out last year, staged a come-back this year and again took world honors by jumping twelve feet, ten and a half inches. And 30,000 spectators, assembled for the contest, cheered lustily. No matter how we Americans take life, we certainly take our sports seriously.

Washington announces that there were 32,712,284 telephones in use in the world at the beginning of last year, 19,341,259 of them being in the United States. It's hard to understand how very many people can be wholly idle with that number of phones in operation in the country.

The people of the city of Washington who are bemoaning the fact that the census enumerators gave the national capital a population of only 486,716, should get some consolation out of the fact that it shows that there can not possibly be the number of bootleggers there the public has at times been led to believe.

The Cleveland doctor who is alleged to have collected $52,000 from 2,000 persons in a scheme "to recover" $7,000,000,000 worth of New York real estate, has been sentenced to Atlanta prison for three and a half years for using the mails to defraud. The doctor's attorneys should have urged in mitigation, that people easy enough to fall for an old one like that would have fallen for some other antiquated game and burned up their money just the same.

Presidential Success That of Country.

"The success of the presidential office is more or less the success of the country and, unless the people give the president their support, the country will not be a success."

Such was the statement made by Calvin Coolidge to a Republican school of politics assembly conducted at Northampton, Massachusetts, this week, by the Republican women of that place and the state of Massachusetts generally, but while made to them, it was a message which may be taken home by the people of the entire country, and very probably was so intended by the former president.

Mr. Coolidge went on to say that it was necessary for the country to have parties if it is to retain its form of government, and that it is better to have two major parties than a multiplicity of parties.

"Those countries that we sometimes refer to as backward, not in any spirit of criticism, suffer most, in my belief, for the reason that they do not have a sufficient political organization, and when they want to make some change and secure improvement in their position they are often driven to violent revolutionary methods," he continued.

"It is for the purpose of providing peaceful action that we organize political parties. We ought not expect, and I suppose we do not expect, perfection in our government. Certainly we don't expect it when it is in the hands of the opposition, and the opposition does not expect it from us when it is in our hands, but we do expect from our party an honorable, honest, and conscientious administration of our affairs."

Reading between the lines, it is not hard to glean that the former president is wholly out of sympathy with minority government through the medium of blocs. His declaration for support of the president combined with his expressed belief in the advisability of two major parties can hardly be taken as other than an expression in opposition to bloc government, for certainly he is too well acquainted alike with government and politics to claim advantage for a two-party system with one or both parties so divided into blocs that party effectiveness is lost. The political renegades who like to refer to themselves as progressives have too well demonstrated how party government may be obstructed, and often nullified, to make the possibility that he may be unaware of the mischief such blocs do tenable.

The Case of Macintosh.

Douglas Clyde Macintosh, a native of Canada, is seeking to reverse the decision of Judge Warren Burrows, of Connecticut, which denied him citizenship when he, Macintosh, reserved to himself the "right to judge of the necessary" in answer to the customary question concerning his willingness to bear arms in behalf of the United States in the event that this country should become involved in war.

Appearing before the United States circuit court of appeals in New York, to which tribunal Macintosh carried his case, his attorney stated his client did not recognize his duty to country as superior to his duty to his God and his adherence to the tenents of Christianity as he understood them. He quoted Macintosh, who is a professor of theology at Yale, as saying: "I am willing to do what I judge to be for the best interests of my country, but only in so far as I can believe that this is not going to be against the best interests of humanity in the long run. I do not undertake to support 'my country right or wrong' in any dispute that may arise."

We do not profess the ability, the professor claims for himself, to determine when his course would or would not coincide with the divine purpose, but we give it as our guess, given without the slightest intent at sacrilege, that the Almighty would think a lot more of a man who was willing to fight for his country than of a man who was unwilling to do so.

But all this is beside the point. It has absolutely nothing to do with the case.

The professor seeks the rights of United States citizenship. To acquire them, it is necessary for him to meet certain conditions prescribed by the law governing admission to citizenship. Whether the law be right or wrong does not enter into the case. It's the law, and its provisions should be followed. In any event, it is not the province of an alien to decide for the citizens of this country whether a law be just or unjust. That would be giving an alien a power those who are already citizens do not possess. When the people of the United States feel that the law works injustice, it will be time enough to bring about its revision, and not before.

And it can hardly be held becoming in an alien to seek to place himself above and beyond a law of a country in which he seeks citizenship. It is the privilege of the country to make the conditions on which the rights of citizenship are granted, not those of foreigners. As it is, we have an oversupply of citizens who have in the past, and probably would again, in the event that we became embroiled in war, seek to escape their duty as citizens under the cloak of religious scruples. This country is not in need of citizens who reserve to themselves the right to decide at some future time whether or no they will be Americans. If applicants for citizenship papers can not determine that at the time of making application, citizenship should be denied them, whether they be university professors or the poorest immigrants coming to us from beyond the seas.

Canned Music for the Army.

There has been a great deal of comment, much of it facetious, following an order by Acting Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison authorizing the quartermaster general to procure for a service test a mechanical substitute for an army band manufactured by a large American radio concern. The apparatus is said to develop a sound volume equal to that of two large bands and, if adopted, will be used at posts having no bands, as well as at service schools, flying fields and recruit depots. There would be no reduction in the present personnel of army bands.

Truck music is entirely consistent with the mechanization of the military in other departments. Chemists and mechanics now work where horses once plunged and swords waved. And a drum major might be a legitimate sacrifice to efficiency if the time ever comes when the army decides to get along without bands all together. When the tune truck is not working it is not eating, it is not wearing out. Its tunes can be struck up at will, no waiting—not even the slight delay while the players find another piece of music.

But what a pity if the unmatched thrill which a well-trained band never fails to excite should be lost to posterity. It is at best difficult to imagine a crowd of boys chasing along behind a sound truck with the same enthusiasm they display today in following a band. To take the point further it is difficult to imagine those same boys grown up to patriotic citizenship without the aid which well-played band music gives to emotional development.

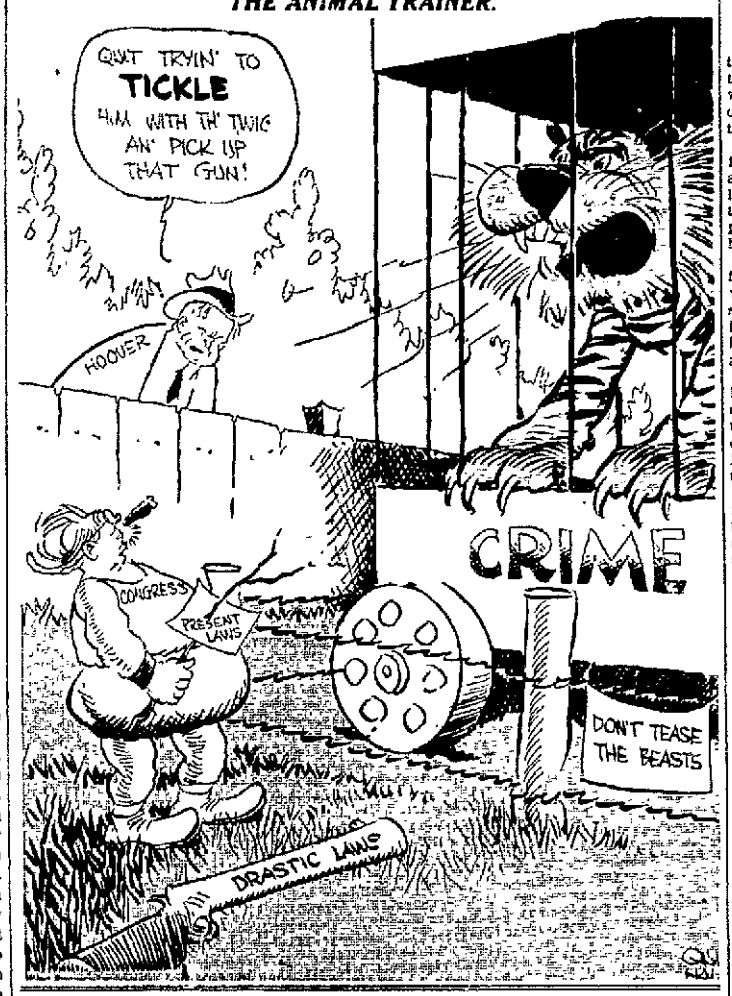
Phonograph and radio music have supplanted to a considerable extent the home-made music which used to mean so much to family gatherings. Stage entertainment, likewise, has come to the point where as often as not the "canned" product is heard instead of the "home-grown." There surely should be many second thoughts, however, before any steps are taken which might weaken the unique position of the military band. Even efficiency must halt when it infringes upon human values.

The last act of Police Commissioner Whalen, of New York City, before tendering his resignation was to put into effect his anti-jaywalking edict, for which the true aristocrats of the metropolis should be grateful instead of showing the resentment they do. He did his best to save them from their folly.

Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont announces that underlying business conditions as indicated by stocks and prices of basic commodities are getting better, but what the country is looking for are business conditions which positively obtrude.

As we get the news from Dallas, Texas, the episcopacy committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church South by a vote of fifty-four to eleven exonerated Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the charge of stock market gambling on his statement that he was sorry and his promise never again to trade in margins on the stock market. While the members of the committee were at it, they might just as well have made the whitewashing unanimous.

THE ANIMAL TRAINER.



Editorial Opinion.

STABILIZING THE LABOR MARKET.

Perhaps more serious thought is being given at present to the problem of stabilizing the labor market than ever before in the history of the country. There is evidence that new ideas are being born to replace the outworn economic traditions; principally that which held that business depressions, with resultant idleness and distress, and business prosperity move in a fixed cycle, and are inevitable.

The purchasing power of the people has begun to take on a new importance, and emphasis is being placed in the simple principl that an unemployed and impoverished public can not support the industrial markets at anything approaching their peaks. Here, undoubtedly, is the most important cycle of all and one which, heretofore, has not received merited recognition.

Attention has been drawn sharply to a number of successful experiments in stabilizing production of seasonal goods of non-perishable nature. By this plan, an annual schedule is worked out which levels the production graphs, while the turnover graphs remain the same. Under these schedules, there is little or no labor turnover, full forces being maintained during off-season periods to prepare for heavy delivery periods; which, in turn, makes an increase in labor during the latter periods unnecessary.

The time is ripe for a more serious concentration of effort on the part of business leaders to bring about a general stabilization of employment in industry. It is vitally important to all lines of trade that the masses be financially able to consume production. If there is any cycle in industry, it is that which involves the passage of money from industry to labor and back again, to the profit and happiness of all concerned.—Columbus Dispatch.

A BELOVED NOVELIST.

It was Paragot, the "Beloved Vagabond," who stood at the elbow of William J. Locke as the novelist lay dying. The other characters, diaphanous Diannas and debonair exquisites, had vanished like smoke. There remained only Paragot, into whose making had been woven a skein of the authentic stuff of life; Paragot, who kept red herrings, hair brushes and tattered poems all jumbled together on a shelf; Paragot, who, hearing the washerwoman's son recite the opening lines of "Paradise Lost," lifted him away from the suds and took him wandering over the roads of France; Paragot, who fled from stuffy respectability, came back to it briefly for love of a lady, then dropped the thing like a hot biscuit for all time; Paragot, who found content at last in the smell of the earth, in red wine and brown bread eaten in the sweat of the brow.

We all share twisted and inexplicable desires with Locke's "Beloved Vagabond," it was because he expressed something universal, common to all, that through all his recurrent manifestations in Locke's perennial novels, he and his creator remained so persistently beloved.—New York Herald Tribune.

BLOW AT SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

At a recent meeting of the Chicago Ministerial union, Rev. Phillips Osgood, of Minneapolis, said that the Sunday-school had outlived its usefulness and should be abolished. He gave as his reason for this strange utterance the charge that the Sunday-school undermines the church, because when people send their children to be taught scriptural lessons, they think they have done their whole duty in a religious way and stay away from houses of worship themselves.

It is difficult for the laity to see the logic of such an argument, and it is not likely that many of the clergy would be willing to subscribe to it, for churchmen of all creeds have urged upon parents for many years the importance of Bible teaching for their children, with apparently little thought of its diminishing church attendance.

The work of teaching religion to classes is of very ancient origin, and the spirit of it has come down through the centuries. Sunday-schools in this country now have about 12,000,000 members and it is not in the least likely that such arguments against them as are made by Dr. Osgood are going to reduce the number to any great extent.—Los Angeles Times.

Interested in a Hole in the Ground.

That former woman's United States golf champion who profited over $1,000,000 by selling an oil well apparently did not confine her interest wholly to the little hole on the green.—Christian Science Monitor.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Saturday, May 21.

Halley's comet presented a very interesting spectacle in the western sky just after sundown.

Count de Lesseps, French aviator, flew from Calais, France, to a point near Dover, England, in fifty minutes.

Warren G. Harding was indorsed for governor of Ohio by the Republican county convention.

Clarence H. Gallcher was placed in charge of the local interlocking tower.

A school enumeration of at least 5,000 was anticipated.

Painful Feet.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Statistics show that nine out of ten people have some form of foot trouble. Why is this?

Wrong-fitting shoes, wrong methods of standing and walking, with the toes turned out instead of straight ahead, lack of exercise—these are common faults. All of them cause weakness, strain and stress of the feet, and as a result, the entire nervous system may be disturbed.

Your feet play a large part in your welfare. No one can be a success in life if these members are subjected to constant strain.

The nerves of the feet are connected with the nerves of the leg and body. Many a person has pains in various parts of the body and wonders at the cause. Many a stubborn case of headache, backache, poor circulation and spinal disorder has been mistaken for neuritis, rheumatism or kidney disease when the trouble has been nothing but poor, misused feet.

Much damage is done by wearing too high-heeled shoes. A high-heeled shoe throws the arch of the foot out of position and the weight of the body is placed on the front part of the foot. The present fashion of too high heels for women is a foolish one, for it must bring with it many ills of the body.

Many people suffer from fallen arches. The majority of them feel aches and pains of one sort or another and become tired after being on the feet for awhile. By use of the correct shoe this can be overcome in time. Change the shoes and stockings often. This eases the feet immensurably.

The proper care of the feet begins with cleanliness. Every night the feet should be thoroughly bathed. All day long they are kept in an almost air-tight compartment. The foot perspires and the oil glands pour out their oily secretions. The feet need more bathing than the rest of the body. After bathing the feet, twist and turn them so that the muscles, nerves and blood vessels can be exercised and stimulated. Massage the foot gently. You will relax and feel better all over for this extra care of the feet at night.

Do not be forgetful of the necessity of careful selection and fitting of your children's shoes. Have them properly fitted to combine comfort and foot health as well as for looks. Many of the foot troubles of childhood bring on poor posture. The child does not complain of the pain, but symptoms of fatigue and weakness are often due to improper shoes. See that the stockings are not too short or too long, so as to cramp or injure the feet of your child.

This marvelous mechanism called the foot carries you on your way over the floor of the world. It gives grace to the dancer, cushions the descent of the pole-vaulter and carries the soldier with his heavy pack over dreary miles on the march. How little we appreciate its worth.

Walking is a fine art and one of the best exercises in the world. If your feet are to function properly, house them in roomy, comfortable shoes, so that your body will be poised, your stride vigorous and easy and every movement of the body lithe and supple with energy and good health.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, May 21—What might have been the most disastrous season in the history of the fashions of dress-making establishments was averted by a freakish quirk. And instead of possible bankruptcy, they enjoyed one of the most profitable seasons in ten years.

The lengthening of Milady's skirts was the fortuitous circumstance that brought the amazing puff of prosperity. Ladies who follow the styles suddenly discovered their entire wardrobe was outmoded. Short hems precluded the possibility of lowering skirts on hand.

Thus women had to be completely re-outfitted or step out of the parade. The designer who brought about the quick change, but gave in the trade did not receive credit therefor, was Louise Boulanger, of Paris. Her introduction of the idea was acclaimed with a hoot.

But the unexplainable happened. Holdouts began to fall into line. Only one Parisian dressmaker refused stubbornly to comply with the new dictum. As a result, the American customers of that salon found themselves in Palm Beach for the season as out of date as the puff sleeve.

Never were the mercurial vagaries of fashion so strikingly illustrated as in the restoration of a longer skirt. The greatest experts were convinced the short skirt, due to trimness and freedom, would not be changed for many seasons. It was a fixture.

American women took to the change with more enthusiasm than their European sisters. There is still a little reluctance among die-hards, especially in England. But as nearly as any one can judge in the trade, a longer skirt will remain for some time.

That America or rather New York, is out in front as a style leader and riding hard is now apparent. Lelong, Worth, Patou and other foremost Parisian modistes now come to this country twice a year to study conditions before making up collections. A frock is hailed as "very American" instead of "very Parisian."

* * *

Contrariwise, three of New York's leading dressmakers who used to make four yearly style-scouting excursions to Paris make but a single trip these days. And Jean Nash, reputed best-dressed woman of Paris, announces her fall wardrobe will be selected in New York.

* * *

In Paris, an expert designer is paid the top price of $8,000 a year. The majority receive about $6,000. Four New York designers receive $50,000 each annually. Two were immigrants.

* * *

New York conturiers have abolished what has long been known as "openings"—at which seasonal creations are privately shown to favored patrons. It was discovered many who received exclusive invitations would pass them on, sometimes to servants.

* * *

One more observation and needlework will be dropped for the day. The most expensive frock of the season was made for a musical comedy star for $750.

* * *

A colored elevator man in Forty-Third street, in reply to my observation the weather had moderated observed: "Yessah, the wind has debated considerable."

* * *

Which recalls the time a darkey in our town saw an eleven-inning tie game between the Cincinnati and Chicago ball clubs. He postcarded his employer: "Game lasted eleven endings. Not airy one made by airy one."

* * *

I always enjoy a brush between two taxis. It is possible to pick up at such times red-corpuscled phrases that have even escaped Bill Hogg's lexicon. The formula is standardized. Each driver leaps from his perch, glares icily and, suddenly lets go of simply grand epithets. Then they jot down license numbers and ride away again. Often whistling.

* * *

"I notice," writes George B., "a certain sanctimony in your writings lately. It is an opportune time to tell the world about the time my aunt caught you writing a dirty word on our coal house."

I certainly picked a fine time to go straight.

Einstein, the Consolidator.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

There is much mystery and a world of misunderstanding still associated with the name of Albert Einstein. It is believed by the general public, although not by mathematicians and physicists, that Einstein's theories represent a complete break with the past. The real truth of the matter is that Einstein consolidated the gains of the past and went further forward to new triumphs.

Thirty years ago Lord Kelvin said, in addressing the Royal Institution of Great Britain, that there were two clouds on the horizon. These clouds threatened the carefully erected scientific structure of the past. These two clouds gradually spread and ominously covered the heavens. They might be given the names of the discrepancies regarding energy and ether. They may be said to embody the Michelson-Morley experiment and the quantum theory.

Until very recent times great faith was expressed by physicists in the concept of the ether. Sir Oliver Lodge described it as "one continuous substance filling all space; which can vibrate as light; which can be sheared into positive and negative electricity; which in whirls constitutes matters, and which transmits by continuity, and not by impact, every action and reaction of which matter is capable."

When Einstein began to wrestle with the discrepancies of modern physics and electrodynamics he saw clearly that it was necessary to set up a theory which would reconcile these differences. It was a definite effort, through generalization, to correlate and unify the discordant features of the new physics. The problem he faced was: Where can we find a fixed reference system in order to determine absolute velocity?

The Michelson-Morley experiment showed the hopelessness of seeking such a medium in the ether. Very recent experiments conducted by St. John fully confirm the conclusion that there is no known way of determining absolute velocity through the ether.

Einstein was not the only physicist seeking to reconcile these differences. Lorentz, the Dutch physicist, who died only the other day, anticipated Einstein by a year in advancing a theory very similar in technic to special relativity. Both Lorentz and Fitz-Gerald attempted to explain the null result of the Michelson-Morley experiment by assuming that a body, say a bar of iron, moving in the direction of its own length, is shortened a small but appreciable amount, depending upon the size of the velocity.

Einstein derived almost the same equations as Lorentz; but he gave these an entirely different interpretation. He not only postulated that it was impossible to detect the uniform velocity of a system, but he also laid down the principle that the apparent velocity of light in empty space is unaffected by relative motion between the observer and the source of light.

Many extraordinary and bizarre consequences flowed from these postulates. But one great and important gain was registered: the reconcilment of discrepancies between physical and electro-magnetic theories. Einstein consolidated them in his famous equations, known as the Lorentz transformation.

Moreover, a fundamental consequence of his theory was confirmed by a curious physical fact which had been observed for years without any satisfactory explanation being found for it. This phenomenon was that as a body moves at very high velocities it shows an appreciable increase in mass. This had been demonstrated in 1893 by Sir J. J. Thomson by showing that an electrically charged sphere in motion through the ether would exhibit an increase of inertia, that is, mass. Kaufmann's experiments in 1901-2 tended strongly to confirm this view.

Einstein's theory, as Heyl points out, correlated and consolidated the scientific gains of the past.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

The trouble with certain lines of business has been over-production. This over-production has been world wide. This leads Bernard Baruch, smart business man, to conclude that perhaps the solution of a great industrial problem lies in a new "supreme court of business." The leaders of industry have given the best of their minds to making business bigger. They have made a rich and properous country. Especially they have made themselves rich. Perhaps these same minds can be focused on meeting and solving the problem of over-production. It's a great idea of Mr. Baruch's. Let's think about it.

A report made public by the general council of the Presbyterian church shows that the profession of the ministry is suffering from unrest. And why not? What men in all the world carry more burdens, are entrusted with more grief, and discouragement than preachers? Their homes and offices are cleaning houses for men and women who find life too much for them, who are defeated in the daily struggle. Preachers get little money and their hours are the hours of the day—twenty-four. They marry and bury, comfort and inspire. Most of us are little rivers, crooked, half-dry little streams that meander through life and trickle obscurely to the sea. The life of the minister, who is doing his work, is the little river close to the sea when the tide comes in. The tide of faith and courage and patience and gentleness gives constant meaning to their lives. And the tide doesn't come and go—not so much as with the rest of us. Ministers must live at full tide. They do.

* * *

Speaking of ministers, one learns from official sources that a fourth of the preachers in one denomination have no "theological education." Well, what of that? As far as most of us are concerned it's all right if none of them has theological education. What men want is the mind that is liberally educated, the heart that responds to need, a touch that is understanding and gentle.

Take this story from the New York Times. It has nothing to do with interracial politics or any other so-called great topic. But read it and ponder:

"The chances of conjugal harmony would be greatly enhanced if every husband remembered the date of his wife's birthday and wedding anniversary, Supreme Court Justice Ford asserted yesterday during trial of a $250,000 alienation suit, when a young husband appeared unable to recall the date of his marriage. Justice Ford then admitted that his own wife's birthday had nearly slipped his mind last Tuesday and was recalled to him only after he had noticed the date of his morning paper.

"I have never forgotten that event or our marriage anniversary," he said. "But on Tuesday I awoke completely oblivious to it. happened to pick up my morning Times and looked at the dateline. I saw it was April 29, her anniversary. I quietly went into her room and offered felicitations and later placed a remembrance on her breakfast table. My day was saved."

INTRIGUE, MYSTERY, DEATH, BLENDED WITH ROMANCE

CHAPTER 13

Blood Stains

THERE was no thought of sleep in my mind as I entered my room. Samuels' suspicion of Caroline bothered me.

Finding paper and pencil, I proceeded to draw up a summary of the movements of each of us between 6:30 and 7 the night before. Parados was killed shortly before 7, that was sure.

Annersley: Smoking on north terrace. Miss Jabries saw and heard him there. Insists he could not have left chair long enough to kill Parados without her knowing it. Has strong motive.

Miss Jabries: Annersley insists she was in her room all of time. May have motive.

Mrs. Parados: In her room. Maniac with her. May have motive.

Professor Johns: In his tower room. Hendricks confirms this. May have motive.

Hendricks: En route from launch to her via house with mail and book. See above. Alibi incomplete.

Celia: In her room reading. Not confirmed. Has strong motive.

Caroline: On the cliff. Not confirmed. Has strong motive.

Flique: Walking on the island. Unconfirmed.

Grainger: Having supper in kitchen. Lum We confirms. May have motive.

Lum We: Preparing dinner. Grainger confirms. May have motive.

Hunt: In bedroom. Unconfirmed.

There was also the possibility that the hated Parados had been shot by some person who had come to the island to kill him.

Annersley's alibi looked sound, but his motive was powerful and Miss Jabries might have lied.

I remembered the newspaper clutched in his hand as he burst into the library while I was with Parados. The way he had held it—as if something was concealed—was what bothered me. I began to walk the floor.

Annersley had backed out through the patio window between 6:25 and 6:30. If Annersley's newspaper had concealed a pistol—

Somehow I figured that paper might still be around—perhaps Annersley had left it in the patio or on the terrace. I wanted that newspaper. I was too excited to sleep, so I left the room by the window and outside stair.

I found no trace of Annersley's Times on the terrace. It was dark as pitch, but I was able to make out another outside stair to my left. It ascended one side of a wing to a roof above the sun roof.

As I stepped into the patio, something rustled under my feet. I bent down. It was a newspaper—a copy of the Times. My hands trembled as I struck a match. I saw nothing at first, then—two small stains the size of a dime were on the center of the sheet. Oil stains!

"It may not have come from a pistol," I reflected, "but it's something." By this time I was sure Annersley was guilty despite contrary clews.

I pushed on into the library.

Flique, Samuels and Kirk looked up from a litter of papers on the writing table.

"Hello," the deputy exclaimed. "I said good night to you once."

"Come, monsieur" Flique interposed. "We must work together. M. l'Antiquaire has something to say. Is it not so?"

Samuels waited for me to go on.

"It's about Annersley," I began.

"Trying to get him in wrong again?"

"Monsieur!" Flique said sharply.

Clearly the man was on edge. His manner became attentive as I told my story.

"It certainly comes back to Annersley," he muttered, as I displayed the oil stains, "but there's still that alibi Miss Jabries gave him."

"Come, let us consider evidence against the suspect," Flique said.

"Two motives—money and the girl—and what Hunt has just told us."

"And that rose petal?"

"It doesn't mean anything in face of the rose you found in the waste paper basket."

"Ah, that rose! We shall speak of that again," Flique chuckled. "Let us consider the clews. That petal, now."

"You shot holes in that."

"The rose I found in the basket, then?"

"Who put it there?" Samuels muttered.

Flique twirled his mustache. "What would you say if I informed you that my rose was not in that basket 10 minutes before I found it there?"

We looked at him in astonishment.

"Who put it there?"

"Look upon the rose." Flique picked up the second rose. "It has two thorns on its stem. Upon one of the thorns is a small moisture—a redness." He held the lens over the stem of the rose and Samuels, Kirk and I glanced through it in turn.

"Blood!" the deputy exclaimed. "I don't know how I missed that."

"Also this, Flique beamed triumphantly, and he waved his enormous handkerchief in our faces.

Four small red stains spoiled the whiteness of the handkerchief.

"Whose blood is this?" Samuels demanded curtly.

Flique laid the handkerchief and rose on the table.

"This is what I know. When madame opened the safe and the petal was revealed, the rose was not in the basket. It was then that Grainger left the room. A moment, and he had returned. I did not see him come in, when on his hands I saw—blood. I dropped the handkerchief and Grainger picked it up. You see? Then I saw the rose in the basket and blood was on its thorn. I was astonished!"

This information staggered us. Grainger's hatred of Parados had been stressed less than anyone's else.

"Let me get this straight," Samuels muttered. "We find the petal. It involves Annersley. Then you find the second rose—that lets him out. Now you tell me that Grainger dropped the rose into the basket just after we found the petal.

"That makes it look as if Grainger knew Annersley did not kill Parados, and wanted to do him a good turn or he knew Annersley did kill Parados and was trying to switch us off his trail. And that leaves Annersley about where he was!"

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Helena Brixton and Ronald, Arrive

"OH-H," Marion exclaimed at her stepfather's repetition of the telephone operator's announcement that Mrs. Brixton and Mr. Ronald Brixton were calling. "Where can I go? I can't see them this way! I look a fright."

Her genuine panic was so ridiculously startling, in view of the sartorial perfection which we had been admiring, that a laugh from each of us greeted her wail. She started as if insulted and her lovely head lifted itself defiantly, but there was around the lips the shadow of an answering smile, and I knew that the sense of humor she had inherited from her mother, would have her from either bitterness or sulkiness.

Madge Saves the Day

"We understand your dilemma," her stepfather told her gravely, "and while names the walrus, we deeply sympathize, but beyond that——"

"We can do something more than that, Marion," I said, catching up her legs. "Come into your own room—it's time Mary was awake anyway—and you can fuss as much as you wish."

The door of her room had barely closed upon us before she had caught me in a bear hug.

"Oh, you are such a good egg," Auntie Madge," she exclaimed, "you sure understand how a girl feels. It wouldn't have been so bad meeting Ronald and his mother," unconsciously betraying the order of importance in which she classified the visitors, "if I could have kept my hat and coat on. But you know Mums would insist upon my taking them off, and my hair would be all plastered down, and nothing would be right. I'd rather not see them at all than to look like a dowdy."

"I understand," I said, "but you must hurry. They probably do not mean to make a long call."

"Hello! Marion!" Mary raised herself upon one languid elbow. "When did you blow in? Thought you weren't due till tomorrow. Hope you don't mind your staking off your bed. Your mother and Auntie Madge are to blame. They penned me up in here."

"She doesn't mind and she'll explain later", I said crisply. "Just now, Mary, you have an assignment to see that she hurries through her beauty course and gets back into the other room. We have guests, Mrs. Brixton and her son."

"What!" Mary scrambled out of bed as if galvanized. "The one and only Yale boy friend? Don't you lose any time, sister. Here, sit down. I'm the best ladies' maid ever invented. Run along Auntie Madge, and wash your dishes. I'll turn this young woman back into the other room before you know she's left it."

With Marion's embarrassed giggles following me, I returned to the living room to find Lillian and Mrs. Brixton greeting each other, while Ronald stood a little apart near Mr. Underwood, patiently striving for a man-of-the-world air, but with quick, questioning eyes searching the room and its entrances.

"Oh! Mrs. Graham's!" Helena Brixton's beautifully modualted voice addressed me. "Please help me to make my peace with Lillian. I really did not mean to kidnap her child. But indeed, I find that here has returned while mine is still lost in the wilds of the shopping district. Lucky she has Charlie with her. He always takes such wonderful care of her. There are few uncles so devoted."

What Will Lillian Do?

There was genuine warmth in her tones, and I realized that she had forgotten—probably had not remembered for years—that the half-brother of her second husband had no ties of kindred whatever with her children by her unhappy first marriage, to whom Samuel Brixton had given his name and an adoring fatherhood.

"I do not think you need to worry about Carolyn," I told her with a smile. "Mr. Owen was taking care of her most effectively. Her only discomfort appeared to lie in a fear that Marion might not be able to come to the party tonight."

Ronald took a step forward with a smothered little exclamation of dismay which his mother echoed as she turned back to Lillian.

"Oh, you couldn't punish me that way, Lillian," she said, and there was in her voice the seductive quality—also, in Carolyn's—possessed by certain women dubbed by the old housewives as being "able to coax the birds off the bushes."

Lillian suddenly smiled at her—she had not been smiling when I entered the room.

"The same old Helena," she said. "Do you remember how you used to get 'round the teacher?"

Mrs. Brixton returned the affectionate, comradely glance, seen only in its perfection between two old school friends.

"What I'm worrying about now is whether I shall be able to get around you," she said frankly, and Lillian laughed, but Ronald's young face was tense and unsmiling. I knew that all his eager heart was hanging upon Lillian's answer to his mother's plea.

I saw Lillian look quickly at him and then glance as swiftly away again. It is not her way to be cruel, but some perversity of spirit which had its roots in her dread of Marion's growing away from her kept her from answering too soon the silent appeal of her old friend's handsome young son.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TODAY was Wednesday, and half of the next to the last week of school has went, and I was so sorry thinking about it when I woke up that I forgot about my mother's tulips till I had let Jubilee down and had went down and milked the cow and her dotter and went in to strain the milk and feed my face, and my mother was still feeling bad about them, and she said she couldn't imagine a little girl doing a thing like that. My father said neither could he but he could imagine a boy doing it. Then he looked at me with two eyes that looked like ice and asted me if I picked my mother's tulips, and I told him I didn't, I was glad he didn't ast me if I stuck them in the ground after they were picked. I hope the gimmie girl don't come past again till my mother has forgot about them.

The bunch stayed in the barn whilst I was milking this morning and looked out of the cracks so they could skin out if they saw a policeman or a detective coming. Nobody came, but I bet they will never go near Mills street again. They wanted to cut the long hair off of the end of the Cow's tail and make them some false whiskers and mustaches so no one would recognize them, but I wouldn't let them do it. And I let the cows out as soon as I had them milked so they couldn't do it whilst I was in the house feeding my face.

Younnis and Feeble and Maggie thought they had to go to the pasture with us, so we couldn't have a swim in the creek. They are going to spoil our vacation if we don't watch out. When a fella is aching to go swimming he don't want to help a bunch of girls gather wildflowers to take to the teacher, but that was what we had to do.

Before we got done we were way over in the woods by Mud Turkle pond, and there was an old piece of log sticking up out of the water in the middle of the pond and a big mud turkle and two little ones were settling on it, and the water was muddy and the sun shining on it and I bet I could of dove out and caught one of them, but all we could do was to throw sticks at them till they slid off into the water. Peanuts was bending over next to the pond pulling a piece of sod up to throw at the turkles and Feeble was inching up toardst the high part of him and he was squinting at her between his legs with one eye, and all at once she hollered "Snake!" and jumped at him, but he fell flat before she landed and she went over him into the pond with her feet in the air, and she looked like two cents when she came up and squirted the muddy water out of her face. She told him he was a crook, and he said he was a smarter crook than some crooks he knew, and she had to hike out for home to get dry clothes on so she could go to school. We all hoorawed her but she didn't care. It served her right.

92-Year-Old Gold Star Mother Annoyed as Doctors Insist on 'Taking Her Pulse'

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 21—It was with a sigh of relief that Mrs. Elizabeth G. Hutchins, 92 years old, went aboard the S. S. George Washington today to sail for France with the third contingent of 262 Gold Star mothers.

Mrs. Hutchins was all tired and not, she explained, from the effects of her five-day trip across the country from her home in Oakland, Cal.

"It's the doctors," she said. "They won't leave me alone. They think I'm too old to go to France—I, who still earn my living by running a rooming house out in Oakland—and they keep pestering the life out of me.

"All the way across the continent they kept hopping onto the train and wanting to take my pulse. I suppose people in Oakland wired ahead to them, and they meant well. And I tried to be nice and polite about it.

"I only refused once. That was in Logansport, Ind. But you do get tired of having your pulse taken all the time. It's made me wonder if, after all, maybe I'm too old to travel."

Mrs. Hutchins, who besides being a Gold Star mother is also a member of an organization formed nearly 70 years ago by young women who wanted to knit socks for the Union soldiers in the Civil War, is enroute to France to visit the grave of her stepson, Creighton Hutchins.

Her own children are all dead. Her son, Willis N. Mills, was chief assistant to the attorney general in the administrations of Roosevelt, Taft, and Wilson. His son, Willis N. Mills, Jr., a New York architect, met her on her arrival here. And in Paris she will be met by her son-in-law, Charles De Vidal Hunt, a newspaperman.

SAY BRICK IN WORK IS POOR

Residents Appear Before Council with Results of State Test.

Special To The Star

BUCYRUS, May 21—Protest was made to city council Tuesday night, by several residents of Marion rd. in regards to the type of brick being used in the improvement of the street.

The protest was made by G. Goldsmith and W. J. Michael, both of whom appeared before council saying the type of brick being used was not first class brick, also that the work of improvement was not first class work.

Council voted to authorize City Solicitor Charles F. Schaber to confer with the county commissioners who let the contract, asking that first class material and work be used. It was revealed during the discussion, that bricks from the north end and the south end of the improvement had been sent to Columbus where they were tested. Protesters stated that the brick tested 24 per cent, only two per cent above the state standard. Service Director Kober, however, claimed that the best bricks only tested 20 per cent.

NAMES NEW MINISTER FOR CANADIAN POST

Hanford MacNider of Iowa Chosen by Hoover for Important Position.

WASHINGTON, May 21—President Hoover has selected Hanford MacNider, of Mason City, Ia., to be American minister to Canada. His name already has been approved by the Ottawa government and is now seeking acceptance in London. The nomination will be sent to the senate for confirmation either today or tomorrow, the White House announced today.

MacNider was assistant secretary of war under President Coolidge. Before that, he was national commander of the American Legion. During the war, he served as adjutant of the second division and rang up a splendid military record, having been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross with a cluster, the Croix De Guerre and five French citations, and the Croce Al Merito Di Guerra from Italy.

The assignment of MacNider to Canada has a special significance because his father, the late Charles Henry MacNider, was born in the dominion. The post at Ottawa is one of the few public offices that could persuade him to again leave private life. He resigned as assistant secretary of war to take over the active guidance of his father's bank in Mason City.

MacNider is 41 years old and married. He was born in Mason City and educated at Harvard. He is a thirty-second degree Mason. At the 1924 Republican convention he was a delegate-at-large.

No opposition is expected to his appointment. During his service here under the Coolidge administration, MacNider made many friends in congress.

TWO OTHER EPWORTH NINES ARE WINNERS

Calvary Beats St. Mary's 8-0 in Only Shutout Effort of Four Games.

EPWORTH JUNIORS baseball team broke a long standing jinx and walloped the Trinity Baptist 11 to 3 in the second game of the season played on Garfield diamond yesterday afternoon It was the second straight defeat for Trinity and the first victory for the Juniors (Trinity won from Calvary on the field last week but had the game thrown out by the city commission because of the alleged use of an ineligible player)

The other three games played resulted in victories for the other two Epworth teams and the Calvary nine Epworth No 1 defeated Christians 6 to 1 Epworth Seniors won from the Lutherans 5 to 2 and St Mary's lost to Calvary 8 to 0

According to the Juniors it takes but one inning to win a ball game at least that is the principle on which they worked in their game with Trinity The game started out with some

Enough Home Runs To Win Ball Game

Roy Rice threw the ball away in the first frame of the Epworth Senior vs Lutheran ball game and presented two runs (the only two the losers got) to the Lutherans who then proceeded to lose the game 5 and 2 to the Smart coached nine Edington started the work for the Seniors when he found one of Kotheusperger's tosses to his liking and banged out a circuit clout This was the only Senior tally for the first four innings In the fifth two errors by the opposition a single and a home run by Senior bat tera and the game was on ice for the Smart team Wiedemann took the credit for the four ply blow in the fifth Martin duplicated the feat again in the sixth to add to the lead of the winners If the winners had not counted anything other than homers they could still have won the ball game 4 to — Rice gave the losers their only two runs but he took more away from them than he gave them He hurled a fine game for the winners

Clark Proteges After 1930 Flag

Nine strikeouts for the Christians at the hands of Bob Gamble Harlin for John Clark's Epworth No 1 team spelled the doom of the former as the Methodists took them into camp 6 to 1 Besides whiffing nine of the opposition Gamble smashed out a three bagger to put himself in position to score the first run for the eventual winners

The Christians failed to advance but one runner past the first sack in any inning until the fifth In this frame they combined a walk with two hits to score their one and only run Epworth scored one in the second and then folded up until the fifth when they battered out five hits to score five times before being retired With the exception of the fatal fifth the game was fairly even Rank pilched to just two more men than Gamble according to the scorer His one bad inning was the fifth when the Methodists boosted their run total to six to win the game

St. Mary's Team Shut Out 8-0

St Mary's suffered the worst drubbing of the four games played and also the only shutout of the day Calvary returned to the form which was so sadly missing last Tuesday when she was beaten by Trinity and scored eight times while St Mary's was unable to cross the plate for a solitary run St Mary's could get men on the bases but could not supply the necessary punch to allow them to touch all the bases The St Mary's play this week was not up to last week's when it so unceremoniously doubled the Epworth Juniors in the opening game of the season Calvary started early scoring two in the first time up St Mary's tightened until the fifth and then let down in both that and the sixth and Calvary brought in three more each time to make up her eight run total

THE postponed game between C, D & M and Erie roundhouse which was originally rescheduled to be played tonight will not be played at this time Inasmuch as there are four postponed games to be played in Sunday School league No 2 they will be run off today The date for the playoff of the Industrial league game will be announced later

ONE thing that the city baseball commission has done this year in the way of rule making has borne fruit even in this early stage of the playing season It is the rule which concerns the transferring of players from one Sunday School to another mainly for the purpose of being sure of a berth on some team Several players who have not been able to obtain steady playing positions have been restrained from going over to other teams or of returning to their former teams which they have left before the season started This is as it should be If a man is not good enough to play on one team it is no reason for him to switch to another one which may be weak in his particular position in order to get his name in the box score regularly If a player chooses to play with a team he should be content to either be good enough to make a position for himself there or sit on the bench until he can We believe the rule is serving its purpose even better than the commission anticipated when they drafted it

WHOOPEE! We named three probable winners and all of them turned out as expected Whose fault it was doesn't matter It happened Perhaps it won't do it again Anyway just because we were so lucky in naming the probable winners in the No 1 league games we are going to get reckless all over again and name four in the No 3 league which will play its postponed games this afternoon We did this before they were scheduled to play Monday When the rain washed out the games it may have washed out the predictions with it So here they are Wesley is duped to win from the Presbyterians Christians will lose (or ought to) to Lee street Forest Lawn should beat Reformed U B will beat St Paul if Dutch Zuspan is in any kind of pitching condition It's about time for him to get started He hasn't done it yet but we think he's about due

ROBINS HOLD ONTO TOP RUNG WITH WIN

Boston Braves Get into Race with Victory Over Giants; Indians Win Two.

BY HUGH S FULLERTON JR
Associated Press Sports Writer

THE amazing race of the National league clubs for the higher places in the standing has stolen the show in big league baseball from their rival circuit Four games were played yesterday in each major league and while the American was offering but one change in the standing a shift of the seventh and eighth place clubs, the elder circuit left just two clubs in their former posts

The Brooklyn Robins who became the leaders only Sunday held their place by trouncing the Phillies still the tail enders 10 to 0 All the rest shift d about The New York Giants dropped from second to fourth place for the day's biggest fall while Pittsburgh made the best climb going from fifth to third

Even the Boston Braves rankest of all outsiders found themselves in the struggle as they downed the Giants for their fourth victory in the five game series Led by Wally Berger a hard hitting recruit from Los Angeles who seems to have found a lot of cousins on the Giants the Braves pulled out a ten inning triumph 4 to 3 Berger scored both of Boston's runs in the regular nine innings, one of them on his ninth homer of the year George Sisler drove in the rest getting a timely single in the tenth after Larry Benton had weakened just enough to fill the bases

Braves Move Up

The Braves are in sixth place today having moved up a notch through their triumph but they are only 3½ games behind the league leading Robins Brooklyn had almost no trouble in licking the top as they pounded three Philly pitchers for 15 hits to get their 10 runs Adolfo Luque was none too brilliant on the mound but the heavy Brooklyn hitting enabled him to last the distance

Pittsburgh leaped up two places in the standing as Larry French shut out the Cincinnati Reds with four hits to give the Pirates their third straight victory For seven innings French had a tight battle against Reb Lucas holding only a one run lead but the Pirates came through in the last two frames to make it 5 to 0

The St Louis Cardinals followed the Brooklyn system downing the Chicago Cubs 16 to 3 to move into second place and sent the Cubs down to fifth The Cards got all their runs in four big innings

Browns Beat Detroit

Another St Louis team the Browns brought about the only alteration in the American league standing by downing the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 2, and exchanging places with them The Browns went into seventh place They scored five of their runs in the seventh inning to drive Elon Hogsett from the hill

With the first and second teams Washington and Philadelphia enjoying a day of scheduled rest the first division of the league improved its position a bit The third place Cleveland Indians scored a double victory over the Chicago White Sox who hold the fifth post by scores of 7 to 5 and 7 to 5 Both teams hit freely but Willis Hudlin in the first game and Ken Holloway and Wes Ferrell in the second made Chicago's bows less effective

The New York Yankees had to go 10 innings to gain a 7 to 4 victory over the Boston Red Sox as Ed Durham did some great relief pitching Taking over the job in the third inning Durham gave only one hit up to the tenth then weakened suddenly to yield three hits and as many runs

WISCONSIN VICTOR OVER GOPHER NINE

Strengthens Claim to First Place in 1930 Big Ten Baseball Race.

CHICAGO May 21—Wisconsin's baseball team had strengthened its claim today to first position in the western conference title race after winning the eighth straight game by a 13 9 score against Minnesota yesterday

Wisconsin scored 10 runs in the fourth

Illinois nine secured its second place Big Ten position yesterday when it took a 14 to 4 game from Northwestern It was the seventh conference victory for the Illini and the fourth loss for Northwestern

Indiana's squad defeated Purdue yesterday afternoon at Lafayette, Ind 7 to 5 to 0 score

SPORTSMAN'S HALL OF FAME

The nomination for the Sportsman's Hall of Fame today goes to an individual who has been playing with and managing ball clubs in this city since before Babe Ruth donned knee pants His activities for the past several years have been confined to the most part to the managing of clubs and he has been singularly successful in this pursuit It is said that there is no batter in the city who plays here regularly whose weakness this manager does not know Last night because his team did not have a full lineup present he took up a right field post and is credited with a good game His team won the game from the Christians 6 to 1

To John H Clark of 401 Frank lin ar manager of the Epworth No 1 baseball team goes the honor of a niche in today's Hall of Fame

CLEVELAND May 21—Western Reserve's diamond squad was scheduled to play Akron university in a return baseball game here this afternoon The Red Cats won their first encounter 10 to 5

Face the Facts! Spit is a horrid word, but it's worse if on the end of your cigar

...the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency...join it. smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

One of many actual photographs of "spit-tipping" cigar makers. The above picture was taken in New York City, March 5, 1930. Affidavits from the photographer are on file, showing that these workmen used spit in finishing the ends of cigars.

Over 7,500 cigar factories are registered by the U. S. Government. Over 7,400 of these hand-roll cigars, producing 50 percent of the output. Every hand-rolled cigar—made by American Cigar Co. or anyone else—is subject to the possible danger of "spit-tipping." Certified Cremo is absolutely free from spit-tipping—No Cremo is made by hand.

The choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords are scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. Certified Cremo's purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that bind, roll, wrap and tip the cigars!

CAP on one ear and chewing gum, not tobacco, Babe Ruth stuck his head out and the edge of the Yankee dugout to grunt at a considerably agitated and slightly tongue-tied baseball writer aged eight. . . .

"Pretty good, for an old guy," replied the Babe to a polite inquiry as to how he was going. "Y'know, I got two base hits the last 11 times up. Really something."

That afternoon he made it 15 times in succession before swinging wholly at a third strike tossed by the new Tiger southpaw recruit, Phil Page.

Ruth reached for a bottle of eye-wash, cleaned his expensive optics and remarked to the attentive youngster:

"Have to do this, kid, when I'm getting old."

WITH the Yankee machine in need of adjustment in a number of creaking gears, the observer found nothing visibly wrong with its $80,000 cog. The outset of the season found many skeptical of the accident Mr. Ruth being able to perform in more than 100 games. The Babe, off to a good start, hitting more consistently than any regular on the team, feels he will actively engage in nearer 150. His legs are doing very well by him.

To the suggestion he was a trifle tardy in his home run pace, with a number of rivals such as Wilson and Foxx off to faster starts, the portly slugger remarked:

"I been hittin' 'em but so far I haven't had any the best of the breaks. I been cheated out of two home runs by dukes on as good hits as I ever got. And don't forget: the boys are throwing all the bad balls at me they can find."

There seemed something to this, for that very afternoon Earl Whitehill, Tiger southpaw, passed Ruth three times in his over-anxiety to avoid giving Ruth anything near the groove.

IT is noteworthy of the modern free hitting era in baseball that of the seven major league rookies who celebrated their first full seasons by collecting over 200 hits, four put their names in the "Little Red Book" in the past three years.

Lloyd Waner of the Pirates, in 1927, was the first to join the list since Joe Jackson came up with Cleveland in 1917 to hit safely 233 times and ten all rookie debuts. . . . Frederick of Brooklyn, Alexander and Johnson of Detroit, all broke in with over 200 hits in 1929.

NAVY has not won the varsity four-mile rowing classical Poughkeepsie since 1925 has been no better than second since 1926 but take the up from a long way off—Seattle to be specific—the Midshipmen are the boys to beat in the big race on the Hudson this June.

In the Seattle Times, George Varnell quotes Washington's young head coach, Al Ulbrickson:

"Navy was beaten in a desperate finish by Columbia but that was a short race . . . Take my word for it and Rusty Callow's . . . when the elder Glendon's Navy eight rows next month . . . it will be a big, strong, fighting crew. Navy is started on a rowing come-back."

THREE TEAMS IN TIE FOR THIRD POSITION

Toledo, Columbus and Indianapolis Will Battle for Post Today.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 21—Upon what happens to Ohio's two Association teams today depends ownership of third place in the league standings. The Senators, the Mudhens and the Indians are in a deadlock for that position.

The Senators, who lost to Indianapolis 4 to 3 yesterday, will endeavor today to shove the Indians back down to the cellar, while Toledo, which dropped a lopsided 15-1 game to the Louisville Colonels yesterday, will try to turn the tables on the league leaders today.

St. Paul, which blanked the Brewers yesterday, will pull hard for a repeat today in an endeavor to overtake the Colonels. The Blues and the Millers, after a close battle which the Millers won 2 to 1 yesterday, are to play again today.

Rails Make Effort To Advance, but General List Drops from Neglect.

NEW YORK, May 21—In the absence of special developments in the industrial and business world, the stock market returned to its dull and narrow trading range today. Stock sales in the forenoon were 500,000 shares less than in the same period yesterday and most of the speculative favorites after reaching slightly higher price levels dropped off from sheer neglect.

After the first hour, trading on the stock market dwindled to a shadow, and the turnover was as small as in any midsummer session. The rails made a brave effort to move up the 2-to. Union Pacific spurting about three points, New York Central 1½, Pennsylvania a point and Katy 1½. General Motors was again the favorite in the motor group, with a fractional rise to above 50. Stocks of food companies rose 2½ points.

Amusement stocks, coppers, oils, steels and other important speculative groups had a seat on the sidelines and showed no disposition to venture into the open. Call money was in supply at 3 per cent.

WHEAT PRICES UP SLIGHTLY

Liverpool Advances Affect Chicago Grain Market; Other Grains Steady.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 21—Wheat prices here turned upward early today, helped by advances at Liverpool and by reported probable domestic crop deterioration southwest if weather becomes unusually hot. Stocks of wheat in Great Britain are reported as diminishing. Opening ¼@⅝ higher, Chicago wheat afterward held near to the initial range. Corn, oats and provisions were also easy with corn starting unchanged to ¼ off, and subsequently showing little alteration.

Emphasizing something of a jump in Liverpool wheat values today were advices that as a result of the exceptionally small amount of wheat on ocean passage, together with curtailment of British supplies on hand, buying will have to develop. It was added that the greater proportion of such purchases would have to come from North America. Meanwhile, unfavorable crop conditions in European wheat fields were described as persisting.

Notwithstanding that the domestic wheat territory southwest is now generally regarded as well soaked, dispatches today from a leading Chicago crop observer said that as a rule the plants in southern Kansas and most of Oklahoma have insufficient foliage to conserve soil moisture and that the exhausted condition of roots will require plentiful moisture continually. Orcenight export business in North American wheat was said to have been of fair volume, including some European continental purchasing of United States wheat afloat.
